Helpful Hints

High-Altitude Health

Bring your water bottles, and drink water all day to prevent dehydration. You can refill water bottles at all of the local attractions. Also make sure to wear and reapply sunscreen. Visiting locations at higher elevations than you are used to increases the chance of dehydration, sunburn, headaches, nausea, dizziness, and the aggravation of pre-existing medical conditions.

Leave No Trace - LNT.org

When enjoying the outdoors in and around Los Alamos, please remember these seven principles:

- Plan ahead and be prepared for terrain and weather
- Beware of areas prone to flooding
- Dispose of waste properly (pack in, pack out!)
- Leave what you find—ancient artifacts, wildflowers, etc.
- Abide by fire restrictions, and put campfires dead out
- Do not disturb wildlife—help protect their habitat!
- Maintain courtesy toward other visitors

Wildlife Encounters

In the Jemez Mountains and on the Pajarito Plateau, there are black bears, mountains lions, elk, deer, bobcats, coyotes, and more. Approaching, feeding, or disturbing wildlife is dangerous. Always keep a safe distance, and be aware of your surroundings.

Pets in the Parks

Pets are not permitted on any park trails within Bandelier, but are allowed on the La Jara, Valle Grande, and Coyote Call trails in the Valles Caldera. Pets are also allowed in the parking lots outside the Bandelier Visitor Center and the Valles Caldera Entrance Station, as well as in the Juniper Campground and the picnic area across Frijoles Creek. Pets must be kept under physical control at all times—crated or on a leash not to exceed six feet in length.

Travel Truths

When visiting Los Alamos on the weekdays, remember our unique little town almost doubles in size as commuters and visitors spend the day with us. During mornings heading into town, and evenings heading out of town, Trinity Dr., Diamond Dr., Central Ave., and NM-4 can be very busy. In addition, the lunch hour in downtown is a bustling time, with friends, students, families, and coworkers eating together at the local restaurants. Plan ahead to avoid delays.

Discover Los Alamos...

It's unexpected—the first visit to Los Alamos, New Mexico. It starts with the drive, as you wind through canyons framed by golden cliffs on your journey to the mesa tops. As you round the last curve, you are struck by 360 degrees of spectacular scenery, framed by the Jemez Mountains and nature's playground. The Los Alamos townsite is perched here at 7,400 feet on mesa top "fingers" separated by rugged canyons. The perfect location for a "Secret City". Come and discover our unique outdoors, centuries of world-changing history, and find your next adventure!

Know Before You Go

When using NM501 (aka East & West Jemez Road) to travel between Los Alamos and the mountains, you will need to enter the Los Alamos National Laboratory's (LANL's) Vehicle Access Portals. Think of it as a little part of the Secret City's past you can still experience today! Public access is available for drivers of cars, large trucks, RVs, and trailers. Simply slow down and stop when you arrive at the portal. Please have a photo ID ready (valid driver's license, passport, or federal/DOE badge) to provide to the representative at the gate. No photography, firearms, alcohol, or illegal drugs are allowed. Random vehicle inspections do occur.
